

QUALITATIVE RESEARCH IN MENTAL HEALTH

BUDAPEST 31.8.-2.9.2023

Eleftheria Tseliou

Professor, University of Thessaly, Greece

Eleftheria Tseliou is Professor of Research Methodology and Qualitative Methods at the University of Thessaly, Greece. She holds a BA in Philosophy, Education and Psychology and an MSc in Clinical Psychology from the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. She also holds an MSc in Family Therapy and a Ph.D. in Psychology from King's College, University of London. For her Ph.D. studies she was awarded a Marie Curie Fellowship. She is President Elect of the Association of European Qualitative Researchers in Psychology (EQuIP) and chaired the 1st EQuIP conference. Eleftheria has more than 60 publications including articles in peer-reviewed international Journals and book chapters. She has co-edited special issues for the Journal of Marital and Family Therapy and for Qualitative Research in Psychology. Eleftheria has also co-edited Education as Social Construction and is currently co-editing the Routledge International Handbook of Innovative Qualitative Psychological Research and the Routledge International Handbook of Postmodern Therapies. She is also member of the editorial board of Family Process, the Journal of Marital and Family Therapy and Frontiers in Psychology-Psychology for Clinical Settings. Her research interests include the development of discursive qualitative methodologies like discourse analysis and conversation analysis, of qualitative meta-synthesis review methodologies and the study of counseling/psychotherapy processes.